Charis Day 2019 is an exclusive, free event at one of our campuses near you. You'll meet local students and the director and be able to sample what Charis would be like for you. In addition, you'll get to interact with the school's president and founder, Andrew Wommack, in a special live-streamed teaching and Q & A session.

Charis instructor Barry Bennett has a few words to share about coming to Charis:

Why do you need to come to Bible college? You need to come to find out who you really are. You need to come to find out what it means to be recreated, reborn, born again in the very image of Christ. You need to know what it means for the God of shalom to love on you, to bless you, to reveal Himself to you so the Enemy can't come to you and say, "Hath God said...?"

Here's what students are saying about their experience at their local Charis campus:

It was the most life-changing thing I've done. If I was a caterpillar, I turned into a butterfly. It gave wings to my life. Before, I would take little pieces, little bites of the Word, but this gave me a transformation. This is the transforming of the mind, and it gave words to the concepts I had bouncing around my head.

Victoria K., Charis Canada

The biggest impact is being at Charis Bible College and being around like-minded people that believe what you believe, that believe in God, that His Word is true, and it changes any fact or any diagnosis you may have gotten from the doctor.

And just being around that atmosphere and talking to people and hugging them and having them encourage me, that really kept me going. It just gave me strength, and I just want to be there.

Rosie T., Charis Birmingham

Celebrating 25 Years of Transforming Lives!

Testimony – Michael Anne Skouby

The trip to Uganda was my first trip out of the U.S., first flight, and first mission trip, so you could say it was a bit of a baptism-by-fire situation. We saw some tough stuff: hungry, drug-addicted slum children, a village devastated by drought, girls forced into the sex trade to provide for themselves and their babies—people in hopeless situations. But, in the same breath, we worked with leaders and organizations that are bringing hope to these people. We met so many believers who live sold out to the Gospel in a way I haven't seen in anyone else before. They fully exemplify 2 Corinthians 4—they are jars of clay for His glory, not their own. I am called higher by these people simply by the way they live their day-to-day lives. I truly saw Jesus's heart for people in them, and how I relate to the world around me is forever changed because of their influence. If the only reason God directed me to second year at Charis was for this mission trip, that is enough. It was by far the most transformative experience of my life.
