Jesus' Farewell Address

Few moments in history hold as much weight and significance as Jesus' final words to His disciples on the night of His arrest. As He faced the darkest hour of His earthly ministry and stood on the brink of His crucifixion, facing betrayal, agony, and death, His words to His disciples were filled with urgency and importance:

Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.

John 14:1

Jesus knew the disciples were about to face the greatest crisis of their lives, and He wanted to prepare them for it. It's evident from the scriptural account that the disciples didn't understand about the Resurrection, even though Jesus had told them fourteen different times that He would be crucified. And seven of those fourteen times, He included that He would rise again on the third day. Still, this was not in the forefront of their minds.

From their perspective, it seemed that all the hopes they had pinned on Jesus as the Messiah—the one who would redeem Israel and deliver them from Roman occupation—were completely shattered. Consequently, not only were they spiritually affected, but their lives were in danger merely by association. You know, Scripture highlights that after Jesus was arrested, Peter denied Him three times. But it wasn't only Peter who fled—all of the disciples forsook Jesus.

Maybe you find yourself in a crisis as you read this. It might even be an extremely critical situation in your marriage, business, or finances. There are many different types of challenging circumstances we can all face in life, and they can really seem overwhelming. While I don't want to diminish whatever you might be going through, I truly believe it doesn't compare to the crisis these disciples were dealing with. I know that's a bold statement, but I believe it to be true.

Remember, they had pinned all of their hopes on Jesus. They'd given up everything, and now it seemed as if everything they had believed was a lie. They had left families, homes, businesses—they forsook it all, and without a backup plan. So, when Jesus was arrested, it looked like total failure. And on top of all that, their very lives were now in jeopardy. This was a major crisis situation.

I believe Satan knows where we're vulnerable. He sometimes sees our weaknesses better than we do. Being a spiritual creature, he doesn't just perceive things in the natural realm. I believe he saw that these disciples were the ones Jesus was entrusting His entire kingdom to and that Jesus was depending on them. And because of that, I believe Satan was throwing everything he had at them—depression, discouragement, fear, anything he could use to try to snuff these guys out. After all, they were the ones who would carry on the message Jesus had left with them. So, they likely faced demonic opposition during this time that few of us have ever experienced.

I share all of that to provide some background. Imagine yourself in the shoes of Jesus' disciples, your heart heavy with apprehension as you confront all the uncertainties amidst all these events. And the very first thing Jesus says is to not let your heart be troubled. I tell you, this is just phenomenal.

You know, in many churches today, psychology has infiltrated people's thinking. Consequently, some believe that embracing your humanity means not suppressing any feelings or emotions but rather just letting everything out and venting. We've gotten to the point where we indulge our emotions and even criticise people if they don't fall apart like a two-dollar suitcase when something bad happens.

Psychology teaches that we're all just evolved animals rather than spiritual beings and that we can't regulate our emotions. As a result, many people feel completely out of control, thinking, I can't help how I feel. If this person does this to me, this is the reaction I'll have.

Let me just say this in love—that is bondage. If you are a person who just vents, without any control over your emotions, you are a disaster waiting to happen. I know that this might offend some people, but it is absolutely true. James 1:15 says that sin is conceived in lust, which is the emotional arena. So, you've got to stop it at the conception stage.

Jesus, knowing that the disciples were going to see Him arrested that very night and then beaten and crucified, wanted to comfort His disciples by telling them to not let their hearts be troubled. There are so many things we can learn from this, and one of them is that when you're in a crisis, you need to take it to the Lord. You can choose to give Him your emotions and let His love, joy, and peace come and fill that place where your negative emotions are brewing.

I am not teaching denial. I am teaching that you can deny those emotions permission to control you. You can acknowledge that something somebody did or said bothered or hurt you, but you don't have to let it dominate, control, or influence your emotions.

I guarantee you that Jesus, as He hung on the cross, wasn't feeling goosebumps of love going up and down His spine for people. Yet He said, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do" (Luke 23:34). It was a choice. He went against what He was feeling, and He operated by choice.

Love is not emotionless, but it is a choice and a commitment that you make. So, the answer isn't suppressing or venting your emotions. What you need to do is cast your cares over on the Lord and let God come in and heal your heart.

Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you.

1 Peter 5:7

There is an anointing on Jesus to heal broken hearts. We need to get to the place where even if we're faced with death, we can't help but praise God, knowing that heaven awaits. If we truly grasp this, then any earthly trouble we encounter would just pale in comparison to the glory ahead. Praise God.

So, when you're tempted to let fear or anxiety dominate your emotions, take Jesus' words to heart. If they could sustain His disciples on the eve of His crucifixion, they can sustain us today.

Don't Despise His Victory

But Jesus said to them, "They do not need to go away. You give them something to eat." And they said to Him, "We have here only five loaves and two fish."

Matthew 14:16–17, New King James Version, emphasis added

When confronted with a challenge, a lack-minded Christian will often respond, "I only have." I only have a fourth-grade education. I only have ten dollars in the bank. I only have a broken family. Or they'll say, "If you only knew." If you only knew what's gone on in my life. This attitude of limitation is something we've all dealt with.

In my own life, I've faced self-imposed limitations. It's as if I were saying to Jesus, "Thanks for the confidence about feeding thousands, but I only have . . ." This implies that He needs to find some other way to accomplish His purposes.

In Psalm 106, David recounted the trials and tribulations of Israel during their journey through the wilderness—an ongoing cycle of momentary rejoicing and then returning to sin and rebellion.

They forgot God their Savior, Who had done great things in Egypt. . . . Then they despised the pleasant land; They did not believe His word.

Psalm 106:21 and 24, NKJV, emphasis added

When you doubt the goodness of God, the finished work of Christ, His presence in you, and the authority and faith that reside in you, you're effectively despising the "pleasant land." By focusing on your problems, you're forgetting all the good things God has done and failing to grasp the fullness of His grace.

Here's a simple analogy. Imagine the Old Covenant as an American football game. In this game, you're playing on a team of six-year-olds against the Law of Moses—essentially facing off against the Kansas City Chiefs (the 2023 and 2024 Super Bowl champions). In that matchup, you can't win.

However, you're not playing in that Old Covenant American football game anymore. Now you're in a New Covenant baseball game with completely different rules. Some say, "Okay, I understand I'm in the New Covenant baseball game, but I keep striking out."

Listen, we all strike out. No one has gotten a hit, except for one person on the team: Jesus Christ, who's both a pitcher and a batter. He pitched a perfect game and then hit four home runs! Through Jesus, you win, enter into the New Covenant, and get the ring, the check, and the parade.

Praise God! The faith of God is in you, the blessings of God are for you, and the grace of God is upon you. Don't despise the pleasant land of Christ in you as a born-again believer.

Book Excerpt from Proverbs: Timeless Wisdom for a Life of Blessing

As we anticipate a week of summer fun at our July Summer Family Bible Conference, this excerpt from Andrew Wommack's book Proverbs: Timeless Wisdom for a Life of Blessing serves as a timely reminder of the profound importance of the fear of the Lord and the value of honouring parents. These principles are foundational in shaping not only our own lives but also those of our children and future generations.

My son, hear the instruction of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother.

Proverbs 1:8

Proverbs 1:7 says that the beginning of knowledge is the fear of the Lord, and here, in verse 8, Solomon begins to give some of this knowledge. He starts by talking about honouring your father and mother. I think it's significant that the very first thing he does is lay a foundation that goes back to childhood. We need to honour our parents.

In Ephesians 6:2, Paul said this same thing. One of the Ten Commandments is to honour your father and mother so your days would be long upon the land

(Ex. 20:12 and Deut. 5:16). There are many of you who have rejected your parents' authority. From childhood, there's been rebellion in you, and you don't respect your parents. You may not have connected the dots, but the problems that you have today—not being able to keep relationships going, not being able to keep a job, or always being in crisis—could be traced all the way back to your childhood when you were in rebellion and didn't submit to your parents' authority.

We have a major lack of respect for authority today. Certainly, there are people in authority who do things wrong; there always have been. But we have some people today who have zero respect for authority. I could apply this in a million different ways, but we have entire cultures today that hate police officers and disrespect them. Are there bad police officers? Yes. And if they are bad, they ought to be prosecuted. There are also bad preachers today, but that doesn't mean that all preachers are bad. There are bad lawyers. That doesn't mean all lawyers are bad.

Every profession, every group, has bad people in it. There will always be evil people who misrepresent, but to reject authority is a major problem. One of the very first things that this wise man Solomon started saying by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit is that you need to listen to your parents. This doesn't mean that you should never disobey ungodly commands. There are bad parents, but you can respect their authority while not obeying anything that is contrary to God's Word. But honouring your parents is a beginning place for wisdom.

Nurse Fights Colorado to Continue Providing Abortion Reversal Treatment

Colorado's law prohibiting medical professionals from administering abortion pill reversal (APR) forces women to undergo abortions they no longer want.

Chelsea Mynyk, of Castle Rock Women's Health, is fighting the investigation into her use of APR, a safe, effective treatment designed for women who change their minds about abortion. APR is used to reverse the effects of chemical abortion drugs, ultimately saving the life of the unborn child. Alliance Defending Freedom is supporting her in defending her right to offer this life-saving protocol.

According to Kevin Theriot, senior counsel with ADF and a member of ADF's Center for Life Team, the investigation is unlawful because it "is chilling Chelsea's rights and her free exercise right to offer something to help save lives and also her free speech rights, which she uses to communicate to women that she offers these services."

Chelsea is currently assisting two clients with APR. She says, "They immediately regretted their decision after taking that first chemical abortion drug, mifepristone. They were in tears of desperation, wanting to know if there was something they could take to save their babies and to help them. Their babies are [now] doing well [and] they continue to grow." In discussing her experience in serving patients who have had a change of heart regarding abortion, Chelsea says that it's "amazing to see the moms go from fear and overwhelming pressures" to "falling in love with their babies when they see them on ultrasound."

Dropping the Hot Potato of Unforgiveness

Have you ever felt the weight of a strained relationship? Whether it's a rift with a friend, a spat with a sibling, or a falling-out with a colleague, we've all grappled with this. But in the midst of these challenges, there's a way forward to peace and healing, and it all starts with forgiveness.

In our relationship with God through Christ, our vertical walk with God is constant because of His faithfulness to us. However, our horizontal walk with people is different. It takes two individuals for there to be restoration and reconciliation when conflict arises. It isn't completely up to us.

If it is possible, as much as depends on you, live peaceably with all men.

Romans 12:18, New King James Version

Throughout the Scriptures we see many examples of relational challenges, such as Adam and Eve rejecting fellowship with the Lord, Joseph's brothers selling him into slavery, the falling-out of Paul and Barnabas, and Judas' betrayal of Jesus. Yet even while enduring rejection and pain, Jesus modelled radical forgiveness, even to those who crucified Him, praying, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do" (Luke 23:34).

John 13:35 reminds us that our love for one another is a defining characteristic of our faith and discipleship. If Jesus, in His boundless mercy, can forgive us and those who wronged Him, who are we to withhold forgiveness from others? It's not about forgetting or condoning hurtful actions—it's simply a choice we make.

I've personally wrestled with forgiveness, even after extending it to others. The process wasn't easy, and lingering feelings of bitterness sometimes persisted. But as I continually affirmed my choice to forgive, those emotions gradually faded away until they were completely gone.

The story of Job serves as a powerful illustration of the transformative power of forgiveness. Despite facing unimaginable suffering, Job's willingness to pray for his friends ultimately led to his own restoration and abundance. It's a vivid reminder that forgiveness is not just for the benefit of others but for our own well-being too.

And the LORD restored Job's losses when he prayed for his friends. Indeed the LORD gave Job twice as much as he had before.

Job 42:10, NKJV

Imagine forgiveness as dropping a hot potato. When you choose to hold onto the potato (or the unforgiveness), it only prolongs the pain. But when you make a conscious decision to forgive and let go of anger or bitterness, you "drop the potato." Through prayer and a deep understanding of Jesus' love, you and I can embrace forgiveness and experience the liberating power it brings.

Goal of the Cross

I love the beautiful redemptive story that you and I have been invited into through the finished work of the cross. No matter how you feel about yourself, no matter what somebody tells you—look to the cross and see God’s love for you.

For Christ also suffered once for sins, the just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh but made alive by the Spirit.

1 Peter 3:18, New King James Version

People will often come up to me and ask me to pray with them to receive a revelation of God's love for them. That's a great desire, but if you don't first look at the cross and the power that was demonstrated there, you're always going to wonder if you've done enough to earn His love. Jesus died for you and as you before you even realised you needed a Saviour. Now, that's the love of God.

Looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame, and has sat down at the right hand of the throne of God.

Hebrews 12:2, NKJV, emphasis added

Jesus knew the redemptive story. He knew that He was purchasing you and me, setting us free so that we could have relationship with Him. Hebrews 12:2 says that He despised the shame, basically meaning that He looked down on the shame as if to say, I'm not going to let the voice of shame stop me. I have joy. I have vision set before Me of what this cross is going to accomplish.

Don't let the world tell you that you've disqualified yourself. I'm telling you, the cross brings a whole other level of freedom from the guilt, condemnation, and shame of the past. And the thing is, we've all done some dumb things. You can keep looking back with regret, or you can say, "Thank You, Jesus. I despise that shame. I despise that guilt and condemnation. I do not let it have a voice in my life. I have a joy set before me, the same joy that You had—the joy of relationship. And now I can have as much of God as I want [Jer. 29:13]."

Still Thriving: Inspiring Updates on Lives Touched by Healing

Allyson Rola

Three years ago, we shared the incredible Healing Journeys story of Allyson Rola. Diagnosed with alopecia universalis, a rare and incurable autoimmune disease that causes total hair loss, she defied the odds by applying Andrew's free teachings. Not only did Allyson grow a full head of hair, but her faith journey also led to love, marriage, and motherhood.

Allyson spoke at our 2023 Healing Is Here conference, sharing how the principles she learned transformed her life beyond physical healing. By trusting God and the power of His love, she found the confidence to believe God for a husband. "The Lord loves me. He loved me enough to heal my body, and He love[d] me enough to give me a spouse," she says.

Allyson's husband, Zayne, admires her strength and joy, saying, "She's always so happy. Now she goes wakeboarding, swimming, and does all the fun stuff." Together, they're now proud parents. When she's not busy with her family, Allyson teaches alongside Zayne, inspiring others on the Healing Journeys Today online platform.

To those facing difficult times, Allyson offers encouragement: "The Lord sees you, and He loves you. Trust Him, even if you're going through a hard season. He will exceed your expectations."

Richard Waller

Eleven years ago, we shared Richard Waller's remarkable Healing Journeys account, the story of a former stripper who was miraculously healed of incurable back pain and a heart condition at Andrew's Grace & Faith Conference in the UK. Today, sixteen years after his healing, Richard remains an inspiration as he now ministers healing to others at the very same event that transformed his life.

For Richard, the Grace & Faith Conference feels like home. He says, "Without Andrew and the ministry, I wouldn't be standing here today. I'd be in a wheelchair with a pacemaker. Life is amazing because a man stayed in the Word and shared it with the world, and lives are changed."

Richard and his wife, Jacqueline, currently serve Tree of Life Church, travelling across southern England to various church campuses. As they share with the congregations, they testify of the healing power of God that forever changed their lives. Richard explains, "We're driving around the country, preaching the Gospel, seeing people set free and seeing lives change."

He adds, "The healing that you receive through your belief in the Lord Jesus Christ is not the end result; it's the start of something glorious."

Thanks to the support of our partners and friends, people like Allyson and Richard have experienced life-changing transformations and now inspire others with their powerful healing testimonies.

From Turmoil to Triumph

As they passed by the fig tree he had cursed, the disciples noticed it had withered from the roots up.

Mark 11:20, New Living Translation

When the doctors found a massive, four-inch growth on her colon, Cheri Blair had a choice: prepare for the worst, or stand on the revelation that by the stripes of Jesus, she was already healed.

One morning, as Cheri and a friend discussed scriptural truths regarding healing, Cheri experienced an unexpected sharp pain in her side. She couldn't help but note the irony, saying to her friend, "This is quite ironic that we're sitting here discussing healing, and now I'm having this unusual problem coming up."

Instead of dismissing the pain, Cheri decided to lean into her faith. But as the hours passed, the pain only intensified, prompting her mother and her husband, Tim, to rush her to the emergency room. The diagnosis? A menacing four-inch tumour in her colon. Tim recalls, "Everything just started moving quickly." Fear threatened to overwhelm them, but Cheri remained steadfast in her trust in God's healing power.

While awaiting surgery scheduled for a few days later, Cheri experienced another surge of pain, this time on the opposite side of the mass. In that moment, she and Tim joined hands and came into agreement, rejecting fear and standing firm in their God-given authority.

Rather than giving way to despair, Cheri took a bold step of faith. She gathered a group of strong believers at a rented coffee shop and united in prayer and gratitude for the healing already provided. "I was already believing it was already done, so there was no need to ask, beg, or plead," Cheri explains.

Among those standing in faith with her were Richard and Donna Harris, a couple who had also studied Andrew's teachings and firmly believed that by the stripes of Jesus, Cheri was already healed. Together, the couple experienced a powerful vision of a peach shrivelled up to nothing but a pit—a symbol of the miraculous healing taking place within Cheri's body.

When the day of surgery arrived, the doctor emerged from the procedure with an unusual report. Despite a thorough examination, they were able to find only one thing: a small mass of tissue the size of a peach pit.

Today, Cheri lives cancer-free, a living testimony to God's faithfulness and healing touch. She continues to renew her mind daily, immersing herself in the revelations that changed her life forever.

Assuredly, I say to you, if you have faith as a mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, "Move from here to there," and it will move; and nothing will be impossible for you.

Matthew 17:20, New King James Version

Grace & Faith Conference UK 2024

This is your heaven through your living

After such positive feedback from those that had attended our recent Grace and Faith UK 2024 conference, we felt it only right to extend our thanks to our friends and partners of Andrew Wommack Ministries Europe! What a blessing it is to be able to come together in fellowship. With many people receiving salvation, the baptism of the Holy Spirit and healing, we praise God for His faithfulness!.

Andrew opened the conference speaking on pride with a powerful invitation to become a living sacrifice. Andrew also brought on stage and highlighted local and international ministries from abroad and local to the UK, as well as showcasing fruit from alumni of Charis Bible College. Duane Sheriff, as always, was well received sharing revelation of our identity in Christ and being dead to sin, not dying – but dead. He used visual illustration, even lying down on stage (and not for the first time at a Grace & Faith UK conference) to solidify the message which is much needed in the body of Christ in this hour. Finally, Mike and Carrie Pickett were welcomed back to Grace & Faith UK teaching on the priority that we must all place on the Word of God in our lives.

Thank you again to all our friends and partners of Andrew Wommack Ministries Europe. The conference can be viewed at media.awme.net and by selecting conferences.

The Grace and Faith conference was dynamic. Such rich teachings from giants in faith, such fun and laughter, a real tangible presence of the Holy Spirit. The worship was like angels singing to God. For me I have the assurance that all will be alright. I have left the conference a different person wanting to know more of his word. I have signed up for Charis Bible College and looking forward to getting more into the word. Loved every moment of the conference.

– Annette B.

I have been an active, born again Christian for almost 30 years, and have never really believed that I had any power to overcome sickness until now. I now know God is faithful to ALL his promises, and they ALL apply to me today! Previously, my husband had been resisting Jesus but praise the Lord, we are certainly entering a new phase. I sensed the Lord calling me to study at Charis and my husband is very happy to pay for my study! Amazing! God is so good! I am so very grateful to Andrew Wommack Ministries and to the Partners for persisting with the sharing of Andrew's revelations and teaching the word of God's Grace and Favour over us. His love for me is reaching me in a new way now I am open to receive ALL he has for me. I made some lovely new friends during the conference too. I am so pleased to be able to learn from them and share with them. What a blessing this weekend has been! 'Thank you' just isn't enough.

– Karen R.

This is the first conference I have been to in 10 years after church hurt. I was reluctant to come but I made the right decision as I felt the spirit of God and I now feel I have a hope and a future.

– Yaz S.

Anaemia is something that has been disturbing me for three years. I could hear my own heartbeat very loudly along with a wheezing sound that was waking me up at night times. I came to Grace & Faith UK and decided to pray with Johan Toet. He prayed and broke the bondage of sickness and the continuation. The same night, I woke up in the middle of the night and I realised I couldn't hear my heart or the wheezing and I was checking to be sure. Thank God it's all gone.

– Nkiricka S.

Wonderful time at Grace and faith. Amazing spirit filled worship and biblical teaching. My husband had healing for sinus problems and can now smell again after almost 2 years!.
